

SAFETY PLAN

What is a safety plan?

A safety plan is a practical plan to help you stay safe and lower the risk of being hurt by your abuser. The plan will include specific information to help you know what to do and who to contact when needed. The plan looks at the risks you are facing, your physical and emotional needs and support you to make choices to keep you from serious harm. Speak with a professional in your life who can help you with this plan as well, so they are aware of it and the support that you need.

Why do I need a safety plan?

Everyone, including you, deserves a relationship that is healthy, safe and supportive. If you are in a relationship that is abusive a safety plan can reduce the risk of harm. You cannot control your partner but you can take control of your wellbeing. It is important that the safety plan is about you and

How do I make a safety plan?

Give yourself space to go through each section of the plan. You can do this either on your own or with someone you trust. Part of the safety plan is letting someone know about it so they are able to support you when needed so you can choose who that person or people are. It could be someone that you know and trust or could be a professional from a domestic violence organisation or a member of the True2U team. You know your situation better than anyone else, so trust your judgment and think about the options and choices you have.
